

77 GIRLS ALREADY ENTERED IN CONTEST

100 Votes Starts Any Girl Toward Free Yellowstone Trip Prize

Seventy-seven of the community's most popular girls are already started in the battle of ballots. Many more will enter the lists before the contest is many days older.

Miss Ruth Weller, Edgely, now heads with list of 2,700 votes. Miss Dorothy Clunn, Cornwells Heights, and Miss Nellie Bustrand, Edgely, are close seconds. But these early leads have little meaning. The standings will change frequently before July 27th, when the final count is made.

Merchants co-operating in the event report lively interest on all sides, but it is nothing to what it will be as the close draws near. Right now it is like the horses jockeying around before the race really starts.

Remember, votes are given by co-operating merchants on cash purchases and on cash payments on old accounts. 100 votes for each dollar spent.

Today's standing follows:

Team Harlow and Howell In the Film "Reckless"

Jean Harlow and William Powell, two of screen's most famous and colorful stars, become a co-starring team for the first time in the new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture, "Reckless," which opens tonight at the Grand Theatre.

The union of the two popular stars takes place in a lavish musical production against a dazzling background of theatrical Broadway. It introduces many new song hits and dance ensembles.

Miss Harlow is cast as the bewitching dancing star who introduces the new songs and dances in the production, and Powell appears as the front-page promoter of everything from flagpole sitters to trained fleas. "ASPIRATIONS HELP, BUT WORK IS THE MEANS TO AN END", MISS DOROTHY MAC SHERRY, EDGELY, TELLS IN PRIZE-WINNING ESSAY READ AT COMMENCEMENT

Excellent Paper Won For Her Mothers' Association Award

TELLS OF DREAMERS

Mentions the Most Common Excuses for Failure In Life

The title of the essay of Miss Dorothy MacSherry, Woodside avenue, Edgely, a graduate of Bristol high school, which essay won for her the Mothers' Association prize on class night, was "Aspirations Help, But Work is the Means to an End." Miss MacSherry read her prize essay on the evening of commencement, Tuesday. The essay follows:

Our world today is full of dreamers, but how many really make their dreams come true? You say times are hard, work is scarce, money cannot be obtained to carry out the schemes that are forever flitting across our minds. This is all very true, but when you consider the number of people that were poor, but made a success of themselves, I'd say that was a rather weak argument.

However, we cannot wait until we are men and women to work out our ideas, because then we meet an overwhelming supply of competition. We find that many people started when they were young to fulfill their purpose and are so far advanced that we must quickly drop out of the race and say no more.

Therefore, work must begin when you are young. Let us consider for a moment the mind of a boy in his adolescent years. Practically every day he sees a new future for himself, but after trying for a time to develop each field he finally gets his mind settled on one aim. Now, if he is a worker and not only a dreamer, he will begin making plans for the future. Perhaps he has chosen doctoring, or dentistry, or engineering. Regardless of what it is, he dreams of the day when he will come day be among the best in his field. He sees himself an idol in the eyes of many, as being looked up to and counted a success among his fellow-workers. Finally after many years of struggling, hardships, disappointments, and even heartaches, he steps into the realm of success he had planned for himself.

On the other hand, if he is only a dreamer and not a worker, he will continue to wander from one idea to another. He may lay awake nights wondering why he is still struggling along on his meagre salary, while many of the classmates with whom he began school are far advanced and have "everything they want."

If he had kept on his work, he could still be among his "classmates." His childhood ideas would have materialized if he had continued as he began.

The two most common excuses for failure in life are—"I am not a genius" and "there are not the opportunities today there used to be." These are mere alibis and that is all. It is very obvious we are not all so-called geniuses. God didn't create a world of almost perfect people, but He did create a world of people with equal

Hauptmann Appeals Today

Trenton, N. J., June 20 — Bruno Richard Hauptmann begs for his life today, two days before the fifth anniversary of Baby Lindbergh's birth.

It is judgment day for Hauptmann in New Jersey's highest court. Fourteen black-robed judges of the State Court of Errors and Appeals were to hear the ex-machine gunner's plea, then decide whether he is entitled to a new trial; a last desperate chance to escape the electric chair in which he is doomed to die for the murder of the Lindbergh baby.

Hauptmann was not to appear in person before his judges. His fight was in the hands of his three lawyers, Egbert Rosecrans, Judge Fred A. Pope, and C. Lloyd Fisher.

Hauptmann nervously paced his death house cell in the State Prison a mile and a half away.

The defense lawyers base their appeal on 16 points set forth in a brief of 130 pages. They charge that many phases of Hauptmann's trial in Flemington were unfair. They criticize the charge of Justice Thomas W. Trenchard to the jury which found Hauptmann guilty; they brand the prosecution tactics of Attorney General David T. Wilentz as inflammatory and improper; they condemn the testimony of state witnesses; they charge the jury panel was prejudiced against the defendant. Significantly they contend the constitutional rights of the condemned man were violated. This may pave the way to an appeal to the Supreme Court of the United States if Hauptmann is turned down here.

BOY SCOUTS OF LOWER END BUSY AT CAMP BUCCOU

Much Work Has Been Done In Way of Improving The Camp

MANY LEADERS AID

Bristol Troop 1 Moves Camp Lookout Shack Roof A Distance

Following the skillful guidance of Maurice Uptdike, members of the week-end project, Bristol Boy Scout Troop No. 1, made fast work of moving the Camp Lookout shack roof half-way around to tie in with the mess hall roof. Mr. Uptdike supervised the cutting of the decorative angle pieces that are going to make Lookout one of the most attractive and comfortable camp sites at Buccou. Committeeman Uptdike has not only given the necessary leadership in organizing the work of the lower Bucks troop but has willingly provided transportation to Buccou and return on two week-ends.

District Commissioner Herbert A. Pettit has been keeping a "watchful eye" on all of the work being done, and he is becoming known as "the Daddy of Lookout." Through Mr. Pettit a stove has been contributed for the camp, water boiler, and some fixtures; in addition he has always mobilized the Bristol party, and directed the work from the blue prints. Expert hammerers were Neighborhood Commissioner Joseph Mountney, Scoutmaster Herbert Pettit, Jr., and Assistant Scoutmaster Chester Nichols with Scouts William Roberts and Wilbur Uile and James Hetherington and Chester Nichols.

Cornwells Troop, with "Bill" Amick and "Al" Marshall in charge, made the trip to Buccou in the "Cornwells Charlot" with Scouts Jack Ashton, Francis Borman, Jack Brooks, Nicholas Eberle, Jack Cantwell, Walter Gottsabend, James Hutton, Alvin Marshall, Paul Menzen, Jr., and Harold Turner. While at camp they worked on the Lookout site by moving one of the shacks a full shack distance from the other.

Although Chalfont is going to occupy the Waterfront Camp, Scouts George Carlin and Joseph Clark willingly helped "Uncle Bill" Livermore in the continuing of the renovation of the Forest View Camp.

Valley Scouts have been always ready to work on the Stockade. Under Assistant Scoutmaster Emerson Green, the logs for the Stockade cabins were mortised and tenoned for interlocking to form the side walls of the two cabins. Scouts at Buccou were Emerson Greene, Ernest Gamble, Waldo Parker, Lloyd Reed, J. T. Frutchey, John Weirbach, Norman Darrah.

Edgely troop spent Saturday afternoon at Buccou, and cleaned up the Mountain View. Owing to the short time at Buccou they were not able to assist in the construction work. Assistant Scoutmaster William Carlin of Doylestown No. 1 was at camp over Friday, and cut a considerable amount of the grass around Good Times Hall.

Chalfont—The Rover Crew of Chalfont—"never fails." They have now come through with what will probably be the most beautiful new attraction constructed at Buccou during 1935. To alleviate the unpleasant drinking facilities at the Chief's Den for visitors, the crew is constructing an octagonal "Rover Rest." The Rest will be constructed of cedar posts and benches with a cedar shingled roof. The center of the sheltered Rest will contain an enclosed drinking fountain. Brothers Russell and Stewart Hartzell, with their uncle Harvey of the F. D. Hartzell Lumber & Coal Co., contributed the material to make possible the structure. John Derstine and Alfred Baum of Hilltown guided the construction requiring many angled cuttings. Rover Crew Leader Charles Poole with his Assistant Gene Boehret, and Rovers Fred Helberg, Walter Heferich, William Carlin and Gilbert Carlin have done the preliminary work. Peter Helberg of Chalfont contributed the use of his truck.

ATHLETES DO IMPOSSIBLE

The Einsteins of sport amused themselves during the winter by working out tables which purport to name the limits beyond which human fleetness, endurance and agility can not go.

After everyone had been heard from but the athletes, they proceeded to crack four old track and field marks in a week, and promise to demolish others as the season wears on. Incidentally, they have exposed the fallacy in any idea that there are computable limits to the powers of man.

This was not precisely what was in the minds of Finnish professors when they worked out a chart of ideal records, based on computations of energy, fatigue and physiological compensations, but their chart has been regarded as a prophecy of the ultimate. So have the figures of Brutus Hamilton, California coach, who accepted Carr's record in the 400 meters and Torrance's shotput as the most prodigious in the book and moved the others ahead to correspond.

It is interesting that Jesse Owens, with a lame leg, bettered by six inches a broad jump mark of long standing, and is within eight inches of the so-called ultimate. Sound judges of form say that Owens under favorable conditions could touch the "limit" now. In the 220 at Ann Arbor, Owens relates that he only put on steam in the last 100 yards, yet he is within .12 seconds of the ideal. In the pole vault, Brown of Yale has upped the mark to within nine inches of the ultimate. Incidentally the mark set by the Finns as the absolute in the shotput has already been exceeded unofficially by John Kuck, as has the 220-yard mark, by Metcalfe.

However, the charts do have a decided merit. They seem to spur our top athletes to extraordinary endeavors to confound the gentlemen who compute them.

MEXICO'S NEW HIGHWAY

Mexico has opened to motor traffic its new highway from the Border to Mexico, D. F. Much work remains to be done in the mountainous sections between Tamazunchale and Jacala, and until new hotels, tourist camps and eating places are provided along the route from Ciudad Victoria to the capital, the motor journey will be something of a pioneering adventure.

Conceding that much, the Cardenas government is in line for congratulations on a very fine achievement. Overcoming almost insuperable engineering difficulties, it has opened and on schedule, the longest single link in the Pan-American highway. Encouraged by the example of Mexico, the Central American states are already organizing to build their section of the motorway that is to run the length of the Americas. What only a year or so ago seemed a highly visionary project is rapidly becoming a splendid reality.

A snob is anybody who eats a big meal at noon and a little snack at night and calls the big meals "lunch" and the snack "dinner."

A hick town is a place where you say: "Gimme Joneses' store." And central says: "His phone is took out."

Doctors usually define "total disability." But in the case of life insurance it is done by a jury.

“Aspirations Help, But Work Is the Means to an End”, Miss MacSherry Tells In Essay

an excellent example of a man that had a chance to be one of our best writers, but he passed it by. The man referred to is Edgar Allan Poe. There were very few obstacles in his journey to success, but by leading the wrong kind of life he put an unsurmountable barrier in his path and left the world a young man.

After all, what really determines our future? Dreams we have dreamed or the work in which we have succeeded? That is really a superfluous question. Everyone knows we are judged by the good things we have actually done and not what we have thought about doing.

Our place in future society is determined by the things we do for ourself as well as mankind in general.

An inventor could dream for years and years about an invention but if he did not try to make it work, no one would ever know it.

Where would we be today if it were not for such people as Franklin, Washington, Lincoln, Edison, and scores of other successful people? They were all workers, not dreamers.

Anyone can think about what they are going to do, but the real test is actual results. That is why people come and go and are never heard of. I do not mean that you must be nationally or internationally famous, but if you have fulfilled your aim and made the best of the opportunities presented to you, you may consider yourself a success.

The school leaders, social leaders, political leaders, are those who have not only dreamed but have worked through all kinds of difficulties, and surmountable obstacles that sometimes seem impossible and blazed the trail of the unknown and achieved their end.

Aspirations are a stepping stone to success, but work is the determining factor.

CHINA'S ADVANCE IN EDUCATION IS SHOWN

Grade Schools in Triple Increase in Ten Years

MASSSES TO BENEFIT

This is the last of a series on "Changing China" by an authority on far eastern affairs.

By John Goette

(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)
PEIPING, June 20.—(INS)—The strides being made in educational lines in China are indicated to some extent by statistics compiled by Dr. Lo Chia-lu, chancellor of the National Central University. Ten years ago there were 2,793,633 children in grade schools. Now the number is 11,667,888. In 1912 there were but four universities in China rated as first class, and today there are 82 universities and 29 special colleges.

Dr. Lo estimates that in 1912 the annual expenditure for universities was U. S. $225,000, which has mounted to U. S. $11,000,000. To this must be added private benefactions. Two years ago, he observes, the higher schools were seething in student trouble, whereas this year there is peace and tranquillity among students and teachers alike.

"The emancipation in Chinese education," says Dr. Lo, "has been brought about not only by the introduction of western methods, but also by the Chinese literary renaissance, which has made the transmission of knowledge possible through 'Pei Hua' or the spoken language."

It was a graduate of Cornell and Columbia in the U. S., Dr. Hu Shih, who founded the use of spoken language for Chinese literary works, rather than the classic form appreciable only to scholars. Dr. Hu attracted country-wide attention by his advocacy of a wider and simpler education for the Chinese mass in the early years of the Republican government. His reform suggestions met with a tremendous success. He and his followers were principally responsible for introducing numerous foreign literary work into the Chinese language.

Dr. Lo points proudly to the increase in high school students from 52,000 in 1912 to 403,134 at the present time. University and college students have increased in the same period from under 500 to 43,519. Likewise he notes the switch in those studying the liberal arts and scientific subjects. Previously the ratio was three to one in favor of the former, whereas in the past two years, young Chinese are going in for science by about three fold more than those taking training in literature, law, commerce and education. Recent catastrophes have given these home-trained scientists an opportunity to show their worth in protecting health, devising measures to combat the spread of epidemics, such as rat plague, cholera and black fever. Medical experts were sent to the troubled areas, as well as to take care of the various work camps of the Council, modeled after those of the CCC in the U. S. In addition, classes were begun for the training of specialists, technicians, nurses and the like. Student groups have been financed in America and Europe for advanced research.

Dr. Lo refers to the increasing number of Chinese contributing to American and European scientific publications, in addition to those working less conspicuously at home. He also finds a hopeful sign in the more stringent examination of Chinese students taking up advanced work in the United States and Europe. The number was reduced to 1,197 in the last two years, and represented a much higher and better prepared type than ever before.

China believes that it can help the west with wisdom as well as learn from it. Chinese Confusionists see a means of preserving world peace by teaching other nations the cosmopolitanism advanced by Confucius so many dim centuries ago.

"The greatest pity is the fact that for thousands of years his doctrine has not been elucidated, resulting in the light being hidden under a bushel," declares an appeal addressed to the world.

"Foreigners and Chinese interested in the plans for promotion of world peace through prayer are invited to write or call at the headquarters of the World Peace Prayer Conference, 862 Boone Road, Shanghai."

Large paid advertisements with this message have been appearing in native and English language papers of China. From this land, which maintains the largest army in the world and which has seen more bloodshed than any other in the past decade, thus is going forth a new appeal for peace from the Confucianists.

Educational efforts are being directed particularly at the opium evil. While many are being shot as users or peddlers, it is realized that education is the best way to cope with this great national weakness.

LET FAMILY SHARE IN WORK AND FUN OF JOY-GIVING PICNIC

By Rhondana A. Armstrong

(Home Economics Representative)
The old-fashioned picnic is definitely out in these efficient days.

Today the picnic basket is packed with uncooked or partially prepared food, kettles, and pans, and away the modern family goes to enjoy an outing in which each member does his share.

If you have never eaten a wiener cooked on a stick, and then put between bread or into a roll, you have been missing something. Hamburg cakes and other meats are mighty good broiled over the fire, if you have a grill. A frying pan can be used to cook eggs, ham, bacon, or even scramble hamburger. Left-over potatoes may be hashed, browned in bacon grease, or still more delicious are potatoes baked in live coals.

Vegetables are best served raw. However, a vegetable casserole dish keeps hot a long while if it is wrapped in several thicknesses of paper.

Raw carrot sticks are easily prepared at the picnic. Raw onions, radishes, tomatoes, lettuce, and cucumbers can be eaten plain, or can be set up quickly and served with a simple dressing. Cabbage may be shredded at home and served at the picnic with vinegar, pepper, salt, and sugar, or with a boiled dressing. Raw fruits are the easiest and the most nutritious dessert you can have. Apples cooked on sticks, as wieners, add variety. Cocoa makes a fine drink for the whole family. Milk is less bother and coffee can easily be made for the adults.

On a picnic without a fire, take sliced bread, creamed butter, and several jars of sandwich spreads. Col-

Nicolas Mele, Los Angeles, Cal., while enroute to Trenton, N. J., stopped in Bristol and paid a week's visit to Mrs. Rachel Rotunno and family, Lincoln avenue.

ACCIDENTS WILL HAPPEN

It was 11:30 at night and Clifford Hill's day's work was almost over. He had long hours. He worked at his regular occupation during the day and in the evenings he helped in a grocery store.

While helping with the closing of the store on the night of May 20, he had occasion to go to the basement. In his haste, he ran up the steps, bumping his head against a beam supporting the cellar window. He fell to the cement floor and was found there, unconscious, by the owner of the store, who investigated immediately upon hearing the sound of some one falling.

Mr. Hill was immediately taken to the hospital, where he died without regaining consciousness at about 7:40 P. M. on May 22.

We cannot prevent such accidents from happening, but we can provide for the future as Mr. Hill did. On November 17, 1930, he insured his life in "The Industrial" for $250 and in "The State Mutual" for $250.

A few days after Mr. Hill's death, these companies paid to his beneficiary, $500, the full amount of his policies.

Insure your life today; tomorrow you may meet with an accident.

Send for our agent, today, before it is too late.

Packed like silks..it takes patience and care to prepare Turkish tobacco for Chesterfield Cigarettes

Size, color, texture, condition . . . all these have something to do with aroma and flavor

Leaf by leaf, the sun-ripened Turkish tobacco is selected or rejected to get just the right kind for Chesterfield's milder, better taste.

And just as much care is taken to pack the tobacco to preserve the delicate aroma during its 4000 mile journey to this country.

So important is the preparation of Turkish tobacco in making Chesterfields, that Liggett & Myers have their own modern leaf handling plants in seven important tobacco centers of Turkey and Greece.

HARD LUCK HITS BOSTON BRAVES

BOSTON, June 20.—(INS)—The Boston Braves will go down in baseball history as the "hard-luck" club of the 1935 season.

Although the end is some distance away, it appears at the present time very doubtful if the Braves can shake off the "Hoo-doo" that has camped on the club's door-step as far back as last Fall.

Still discernible is a slight ray of hope, however, that the team, which finished in the first division of the National League for the past two years and which was looked upon as a pennant contender earlier this season, may yet shake off its present last place bondage and reach its position of former grandeur. It's a big job for Manager Bill McKechnie but the Scotsman has done it before and may do it again. If he does the sobriquet he holds as "Miracle Man" is rightfully his.

The embers in the Babe Ruth "I quit—You're fired" blast with Judge Ruth was merely taking a vacation to catch up on his golf game and to do some fishing which were rudely interrupted by his invasion of Japan. They added Ruth also will do some serious thinking about buying out Judge Fuchs, the Braves prey, who so ignominiously "fired" him. Or did Ruth "quit"?

After signing his contract with the Braves, which has since been placed on file, Ruth said he would never divorce himself from baseball. His greatest desire, he said, was to become a manager. That field appears to be closed to him but there is nothing preventing him from purchasing the working share in a club and hire himself as manager.

Ruth added at the time his ready funds were insufficient but said further maybe in a year or two and if the price were right.

Several millionaire sportsmen have been named as possible purchasers of the club or rather Judge Fuchs' controlling share.

Several New Englanders were said to be contemplating the purchase and drafting Bob Quinn, business manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers, to guide the destinies of the club. Quinn has admitted he would return to Boston, where his ownership of the Boston Red Sox collapsed about him a few years back and where he passed it over to Tom Yawkey.

Added to these turbulent internal affairs, were reports of trades, the desire more than once and was very emphatic after Ruth turned in his uniform that he would step down and out provided he (Fuchs) and the stockholders he represents receive their due share.

In the wake of this statement came numerous and conflicting reports, all of which have been denied by the "powers-that-be" but so were the reports that Ruth was coming to the club and that he was quitting after the first Western trip.

One which still persists is that Ruth would return almost as quickly as he left, this time as one of the owners and not the occupier of left field and bat that spoke with a frequency that was almost negligible.

Will He Splke Louis's Guns?

By BURNLEY

Looming large again on the heavyweight horizon, from which he was temporarily blotted out by Max Baer's pile-driving fists—or was it a broken ankle?—big Primo Carnera is confident that he will fight his way back to the throne. He makes it plain that he considers Joe Louis a mere obstacle to be brushed aside in his march back to the heights.

Despite the tremendous ballyhoo that has accompanied the debut of the terrific punching Detroit Negro, there is an air of supreme confidence pervading Carnera's camp, and to all appearances Primo is actually in much better mental and physical condition than at the time of the Baer debacle. For one thing, the presence of his beloved Bill Duffy has caused a big change in Carnera, who is once again the carefree, confident battler of his pre-championship days.

Duffy, who is one of the shrewdest and craftiest of fistic mentors, personally advised Primo to take on Louis, and Bill did this after watching the Brown Bomber in action several times, so it must be admitted that he knew what he was doing.

Carnera's canny adviser is of the decided opinion that the dark dynamite from Detroit is made to order for da Preem, and he gives his reasons thusly: Louis is strictly a short puncher, mainly a left hooker, and no short puncher is ever going to get inside of Primo's long, oak-like arms, which he waves in front of him like two enormous tree trunks. Baer hit Carnera, but Max has abnormally long arms and throws sweeping punches that travel a tremendous distance.

The punch that Sharkey floored Prima with in their first scrap was a winging left hook thrown very wide, and Sharkey had to leap off the floor to land the blow.

Whether the newest fistic sensation can solve this problem and land his devastating wallop on the Carnera crockery is a fascinating fistic problem that won't be answered until next week.

season. "Rabbit" Maranville has been year when he shot-putted his way over called into yeoman's service but the United States and Europe, finally "Rabbit" is still favoring his injured winding things up in grand style by tossing the 16-pound ball slightly over 57 feet one afternoon in Stockholm, Sweden.

On top of this the Braves have lost more one run games than any team in either league this season.

JACK TORRANCE "TOOK IT EASY"

BATON ROUGE, La., June 20.—(INS)—Good-natured "Baby Jack" Torrance, sturdy son of Louisiana State, hasn't "worked very hard" at his shot putting this year.

"There isn't much I can do this year, being that I am out of college," Baby Jack opines. "I have just been practicing a little to keep my hand in preparation for the 1936 Olympics."

Of course, Baby Jack had no objection to setting a few records while he was "practicing." Among other things, he established a new indoor record of over 53 feet and a Southern A. A. U. record of 54 feet and 5 inches—which is farther than anyone has thrown the 16-pound shot except Baby Jack himself. Then while playing around with the 12-pound shot, he picked up a new world mark of 62 feet and one-fourth inch at the Penn relays, but he discounts that as "child's play."

In addition to his work with the shot, Torrance has thrown the discus, hammer and 56 pound weight during his career.

Such feats would be worthy ambitions for any man, but they do not measure up to his standard of last

At present, Jack plans to enter only one meet this summer, the National A. A. U. in July.

There has been much speculation as to what Torrance will do after the Olympics. He has received offers ranging from coaching to professional boxing. But Jack has not made up his mind.

"The Olympics are over a year off yet, and I will not decide what to do until after the games are over," he said.

PLANS UNDER WAY FOR SANTA ANITA

By Wallace X. Rawles
(I. N. S. Sports Writer)

LOS ANGELES, Cal., June 20.—(INS)—Plans are going forward rapidly for next season's horse racing meets in California.

Santa Anita, the new $1,000,000 track at Arcadia, 35 miles from here on the site of the old "Lucky" Baldwin tract, will re-open Christmas day for a 53-day run to Washington's birthday, 1936. No extension will be sought as was the case the past season, the first and a banner one at Santa Anita.

Because of weather conditions around San Francisco bay, Bay Meadows in that area is not expected to open before next April. Tanforan, also in the bay region, wants a late Spring meeting.

Agua Caliente, across the border from San Diego in Mexico, has announced a 35-day meeting to follow Santa Anita.

Although Caliente does not come under the jurisdiction of the California racing commission, the latter group will not be adverse to the Mexican course going through with its attract large stables to California.

proposed meeting because in order to there must be more than 53 days of continuous racing, which is all that Santa Anita wants.

If horsemen had to ship their racers from various parts of the country for only two months' racing a lot of them might go to Florida where there will be 95 days of continuous racing.

Under mild southern California skies owners of Santa Anita are spending $100,000 at the track to keep it in first class condition for the second annual season which is expected to be more successful than the first season in which good fortune beamed on everything the track did. The $100,000 handicap February 27 was richest stake in the world.

Managers of Caliente have given assurance that the Coffroth handicap would be renewed with $25,000 or more added.

Prospects at Caliente are bright. The course plans to offer good purses to attract the crack horses from Santa Anita after the latter season closes, and also to attract good horses that otherwise might stray into Florida.

Norman Church, sportsman owner of California's best racing stable, has been "contacted" by numerous eastern horse owners who want to know definitely the "set-up" in California next season in order to make plans accordingly.
